Alice's Adventures in Wonderland

THE CLASSIC TALE IN A GRAPHIC NOVEL

BY LEWIS CARROLL

ADAPTED & ILLUSTRATED BY LIBRIHOUSE

A warm afternoon by the river should have been peaceful.

What is the use of a book without pictures or conversations?

Oh dear! Oh dear! I shall be late!

Then the impossible hurried past.

A rabbit - with a waistcoat?

No time! No time!

Wait!

The tunnel dipped - and the world dropped away.

How very deep this rabbit hole is!

Down, down, down... slowly as a feather.

I wonder where I shall land?

A hall of doors waited below.

What a hall!

Late - terribly late!

Locked.

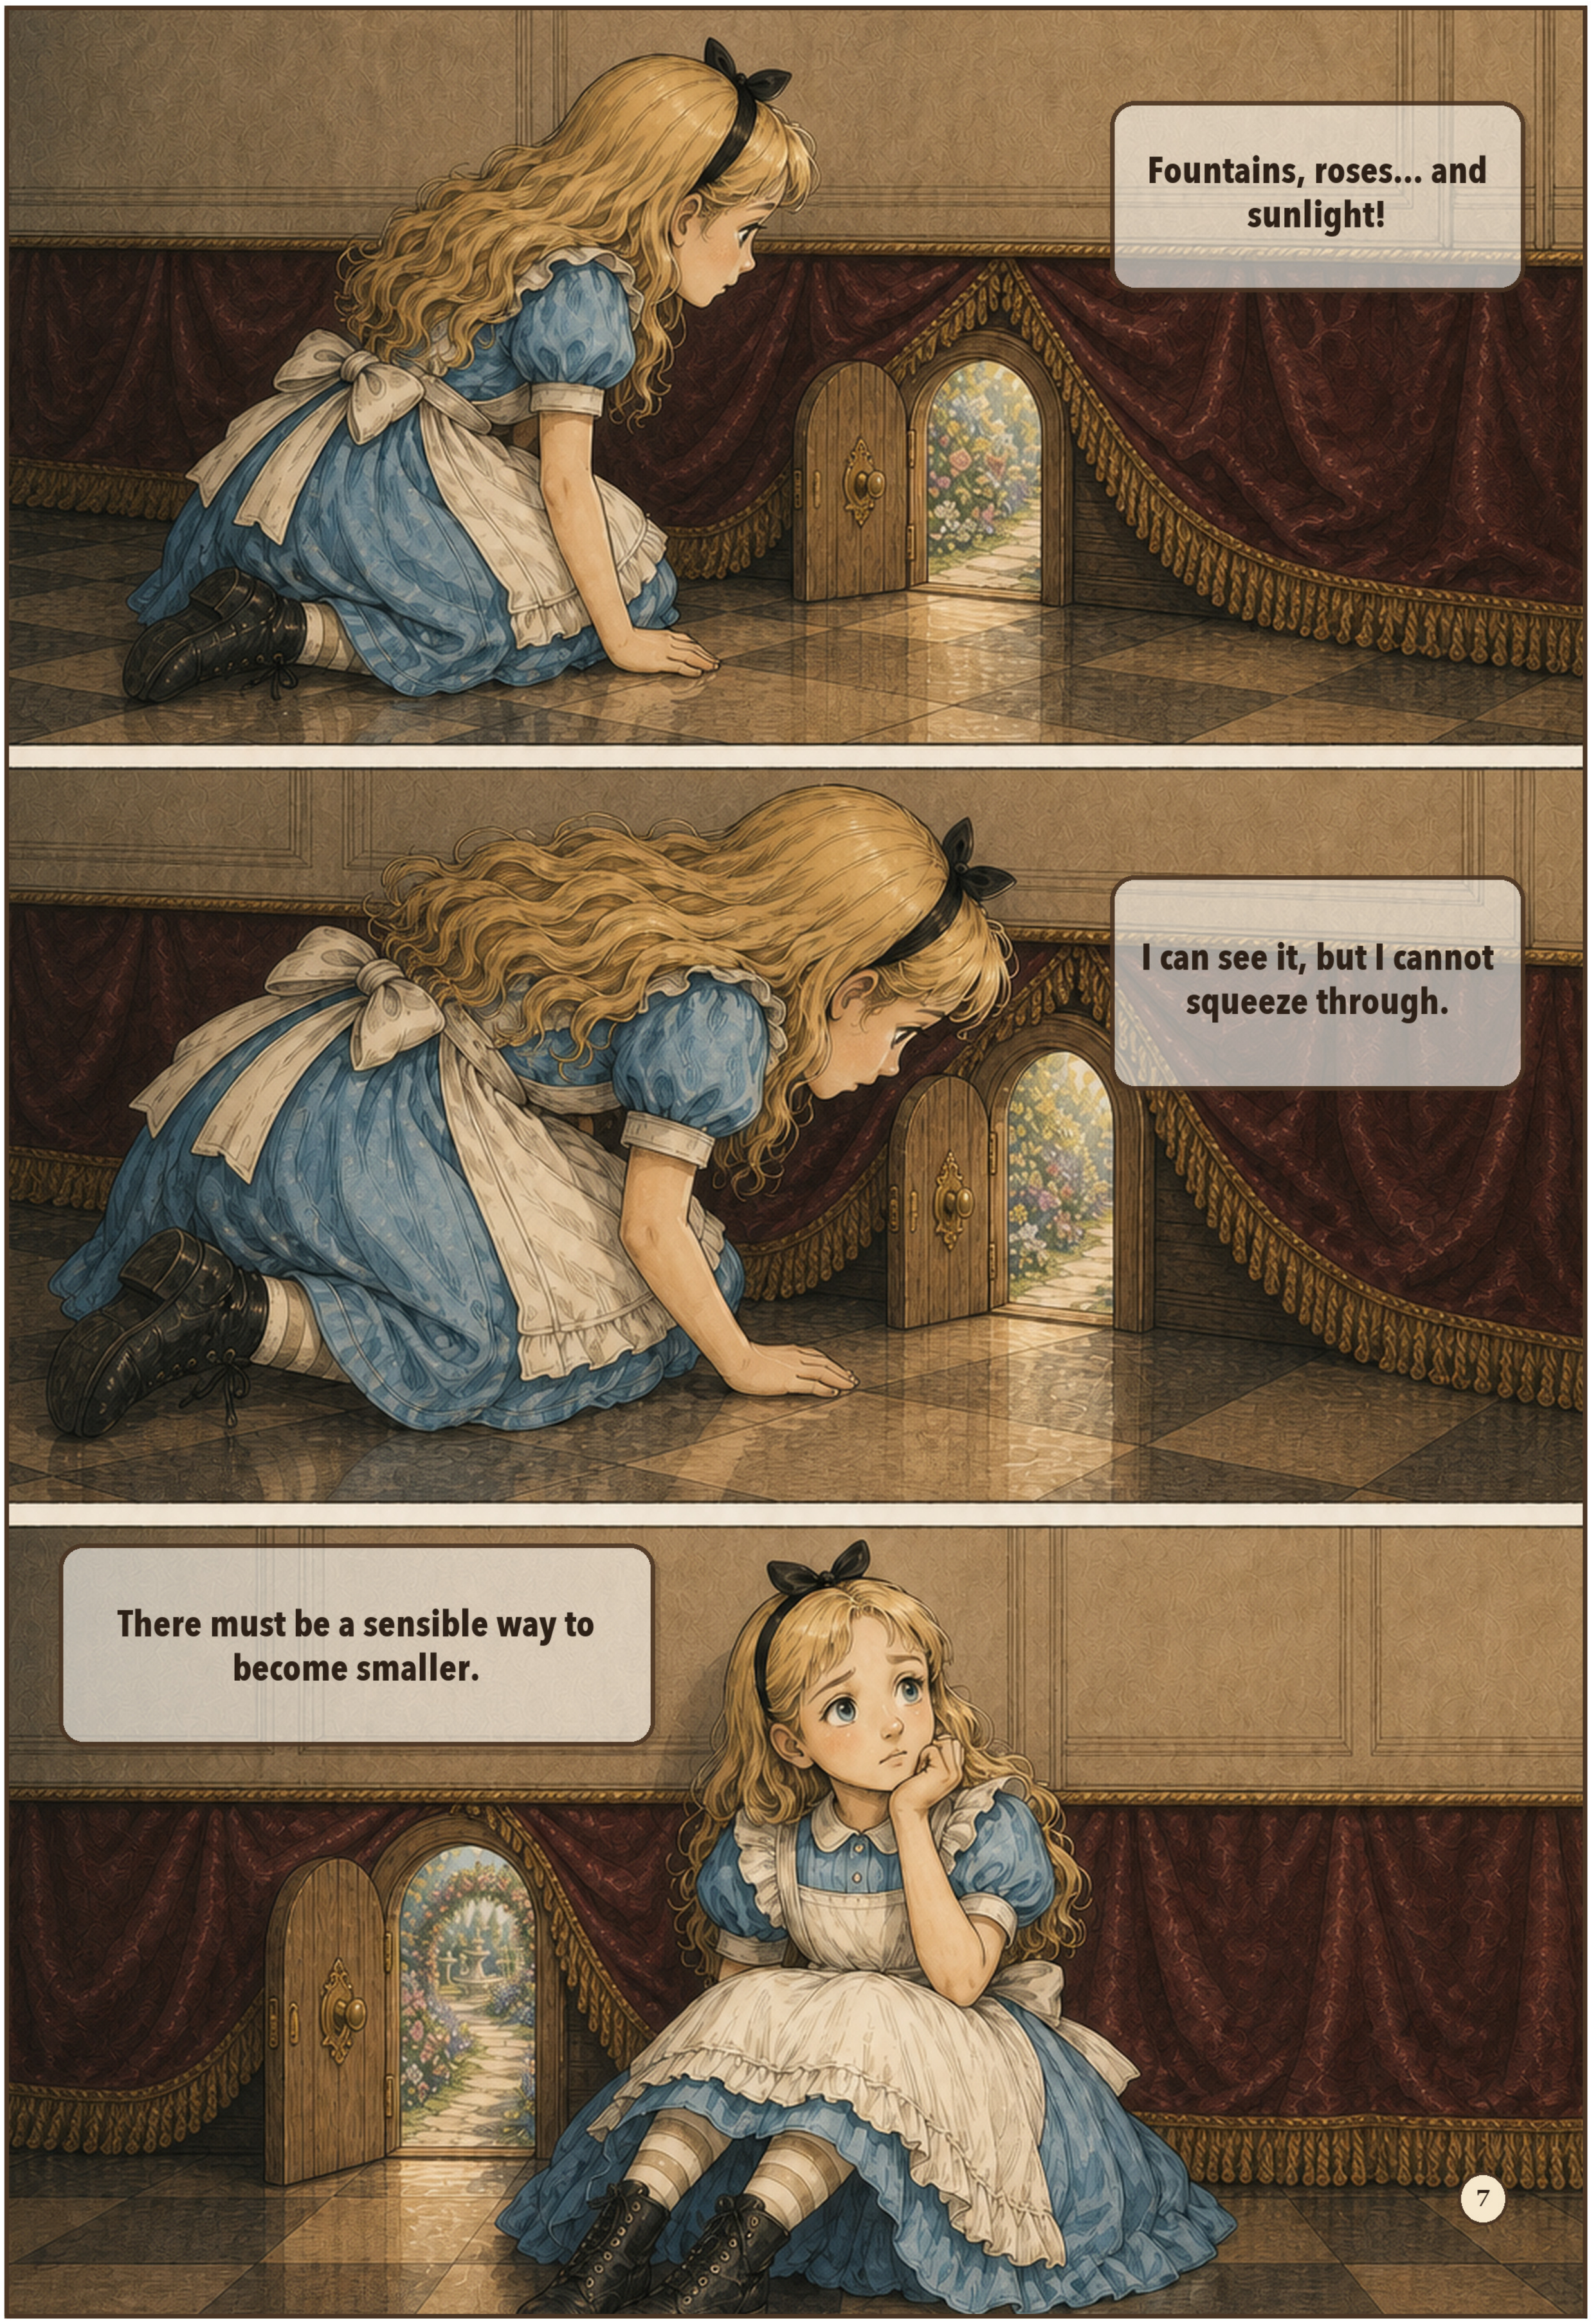
The Rabbit vanished. The doors remained.

Every one of them!

A glass table shimmered into view. Its golden key fit none of the doors.

Was that curtain here before?

Oh! What a beautiful garden!



Fountains, roses... and sunlight!
I can see it, but I cannot squeeze through.
There must be a sensible way to become smaller.

Back at the table, something new waited - a very direct invitation.

DRINK ME

Sensible girls check first. It smells of cherry tart and toast.
